

LO5 Timeline

So for this exercise, I had to create a timeline of my life so far. The circles represent the "key" moments in my life thus far that are relevant to me as a future professional. I did not have a pen and notebook with me, so this was made in paint. I would not say it was totally half-assed. I think I did pretty good with the line using my touchscreen laptop.

What took long was really thinking of my "key" life moments as a professional. Of course, graduating MAVO and HAVO would seem some achievements. Diplomas and such even if these diplomas specifically don't mean much. Which is why I am in Fontys because a bachelor's degree is where it is at. NV Elmar was added late during the speech. NV Elmar is the biggest electricity company in Aruba and I had the chance to work a good 3 weeks in the IT department. The downs came with switching courses in Fontys, wasting some good years because I can't bother taking things seriously and work ahead of time. The last bit was a joke for the group pitch except the end. With more experience and motivation I would like to see how far being a full stack developer would lead me.